THE CENTENNIAL FOURTS.—The Centennial Fourth of July will be the culminating point of a most patriotic year, With the dawn of that day the hundred years of independence will have been completed, and the nation will have commenced on its second Centennial circuit. In one sense this Fourth will be a grand point in which will be merged all the noises, the fervor, the excitement and the patriotism of the country. The eagle which is supposed to shadow the continent with its wings will be hoarse with its exultant scream, and the "flag of the free" wave proudly in the storm of the free" wave proudly in the storm of applause which will burst on it from every quarter.

The headquarters of this patriotic pandemonium will be at Philadelphia, where the glad tidings of great joy to the thirteen colonies found its first utterance. But there are side pieces to this great Centennial tableaux, and every city and hamlet in the Jand will have a privilege and a duty of its own. The eagle which at on that royal nest has hatched a brood of her kio, and each fledgeling has a voice and will of its own. THE WESLEY EXTERTAINMENT. my own Columbia!" and should be wel comed in a manner calculated to send America on the circuit of her second century with her heart filled with emotion, and her eyes with patriotic pride. So much is preliminary, and the main idea is one of a practical nature. It is well known that patriotic German citizens have for some time past been preparing for a monster Centennial celebration. We have already given the arrangements in detail. Suffice it to say, then, that the committee appointed to solicit subscriptions will start out in a few days, and they should meet with encouragement everywhere. MR. UFDEGRAFF'S CONDITION.—The condition of Mr. Josiah Updegraff, who recently sustained the compound fracture of an ankle, is very critical. The surgeon is of the opinion that the limb should be amputated, but Mr. Updegraff has not fully recovered from the shock, and is not coasidered strong enough to bear the operation. He was much stronger on Thursday, but rested badly on Thursday night and was much the worse for it yesterday. It is feared that in the present condition of the sufferer an amputation could not be performed with safety, and fears are entertained that he will not recover. There was no material change in his condition at 10 clock last night. withdraw from the match.
